

If I could spend a day at the beach . . .

A black and white line drawing of beach items. In the foreground, there is a bucket with star patterns, a beach ball, a seashell, and a starfish on the sand. In the background, there is an umbrella and clouds.

If my shoes could talk . . .

A black and white photograph showing a person in a full-body white protective suit, including a hood and mask, kneeling on the ground. The person is focused on a large, dark, irregularly shaped object that appears to be a piece of equipment or a large container. The object has some internal structure visible, possibly a frame or internal components. The person is wearing gloves and is using a tool or their hands to work on the object. The background is a light, possibly sandy or dusty ground, and there are some faint lines or markings on the object. The overall scene suggests a technical or scientific investigation or repair work in a field setting.
